Parit: Wanita warga emas pengsan dan terpaksa diusung orang ramai sebaik melihat rumahnya di Jalan Masjid As Saadah Kampung Tua, di sini, musnah dalam kebakaran, hari ini.

Nor Paezah Abdullah, 63, berkata ketika kejadian dia menghadiri majlis pertunangan anak saudara berhampiran kediamannya.

Katanya, dia kemudian dimaklumkan oleh jiran rumahnya terbakar sebelum bergegas pulang.

Ibu tunggal itu bagaimanapun enggan ditemubual lebih lanjut kerana masih terkejut dan trauma mengenangkan kehilangan harta benda peninggalan arwah suaminya sekelip mata.

Sementara itu, anak Nor Paezah, Megat Khairil Idlan Megat Abu Shahuddin, 35, berkata ketika kejadian dia sedang bersiap untuk menunaikan solat Jumaat.

"Saya ke dapur untuk minum air, apabila melangkah ke bahagian tengah rumah saya nampak api sudah marak antara ruang tamu dengan dapur dan menyambar kain serta langsir.

"Saya cuba padamkan api sambil menjerit meminta tolong, tapi keadaan semakin teruk dan saya tiada pilihan selain berlari keluar melalui pintu belakang bagi menyelamatkan diri.

"Semasa mak sampai di depan rumah, dia terjatuh dan pengsan beberapa kali. Saya bimbangkan kesihatannya kerana dia ada darah tinggi," katanya ketika menerima kunjungan Ahli Dewan Undangan Negeri (ADUN) Belanja merangkap Pengerusi Jawatankuasa Pendidikan, Pengajian Tinggi, Belia dan Sukan Perak, Khairudin Abu Hanipah.

Akibat kejadian itu, anak kedua daripada tujuh beradik itu melecur di kedua-dua kaki kerana memijak lantai yang panas semasa cuba memadamkan kebakaran.

Komander operasi merangkap Ketua Balai Bomba dan Penyelamat (BBP) Seri Iskandar, Muhammad Asyraf Mat Isa berkata, pihaknya menerima panggilan kecemasan jam 1.44 tengah hari sebelum menggerakkan jentera dan lapan anggota ke lokasi kejadian.

Menurutnya, pihaknya turut mendapat bantuan lima anggota bomba dari BBP Parit.

"Kebakaran menyebabkan rumah mangsa musnah 85 peratus dan empat motosikal turut musnah.

"Terdapat seorang mangsa lelaki dewasa melecur di tapak kaki dan diberi rawatan awal sebelum dihantar ke klinik oleh Unit Bantuan Perkhidmatan Kecemasan (EMRS) untuk tindakan selanjutnya.

"Api berjaya dipadamkan sepenuhnya dan operasi ditamatkan jam 3.45 petang," katanya dalam kenyataan, hari ini.

Dalam pada itu, Khairudin berkata pihak pejabatnya bersama Jabatan Kebajikan Masyarakat (JKM) dan Baitulmal akan membantu dari sudut kebajikan ahli keluarga itu.

Blind hardcore poor 83-year-old widow has joyous Raya in new house

MIRI: Celebrating Hari Raya Aidilfitri this year has been especially joyous for blind widow Aminah Bakar, 83, as she finally has a bright and cheery new house.

Since her husband's passing 10 years ago, Aminah has had to fend for herself in the rickety Pujut Corner structure they called home, which had a leaky roof and was on the verge of collapse.

Miri MP Chiew Choon Man, who was alerted to her sad condition by neighbour Noraizan Shamsudin, said the main structure of the old house was termite-infested and Aminah slept on a wet mattress due to the roofing.

Due to her disability, Aminah was receiving food aid and other necessities from kind donor, but this also led her to be victimised.

"Due to vision problems, the woman was unable to cook and the condition of her house became a target for thieves who stole aid items," said Chiew in a Facebook post.

"The first time I saw her, she appeared very thin but refused to be moved to any home for the elderly, adamant that she was not moving away from the house she and her husband lived in."

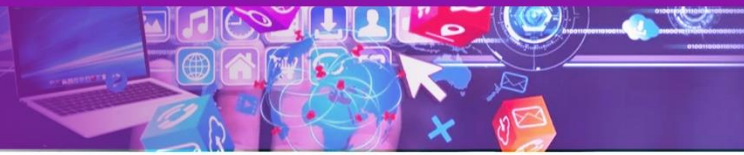

A contractor generously helped build Aminah a new house, with most of the work completed in time for Hari Raya Aidilfitri. "Thank you so much for helping me. YB," Aminah said when she was brought to her new home on Wednesday.

Chiew said he would allocate RM500 monthly to purchase nutritious food for Aminah, which a neighbour would help with.

"This is the best Hari Raya gift I have ever given to someone and this grandma deserves the best," he said.

Chiew also thanked the Pujut service centre, Welfare Department, Baitulmal Miri, individuals, and associations for their care and concern for Aminah.

TAJUK : GOVT URGED TO CONSIDER INCLUDING PEOPLE WITH MENTAL ISSUES UNDER PWD CATEGORY

Govt urged to consider including people with mental issues under PwD category

KUCHING: The government should consider including mentally ill people under the people with disabilities (PwD) category, said Tan Sri Lee Lam Thye.

The Alliance for a Safe Community chairman said on the welfare services front, they should be accorded opportunities in employment to help them return to the mainstream and not be a burden to society.

"In previous years, mental health has been a topic of low priority for the government and the community as compared to other health problems.

"But increasingly as reflected worldwide, mental health has gained more prominence. In Malaysia, we need to do more for those who suffer from mental illness," he said in a statement.

He said mental health issues at the workplace should be given due attention as the productivity of the staff of any organisation depended on their mental health.

"Employers must be aware that the neglect of mental health and psychosocial factors at the workplace is not only detrimental to the individual worker but also directly affects productivity, efficiency and output of any organisation.

"Employee performance, frequent illness, absenteeism, accidents and staff turnover are all affected by employees' mental health status," he said.

He said issues related to mental health at the workplace can also have a direct impact on all stakeholders of the workplace including the employers, customers and the community in which the organisation is located.

"No workplace is immune to mental disorders and their impact in psychological, social and economic terms is high.

"Mental health should no longer be ignored, on the contrary it should be given adequate attention in relation to other business in any organisation," he stressed.

Lee said mental health problems, especially stress-related ones among Malaysians are a matter of serious concern.

"They need to be addressed urgently at the workplace so that problems like depression, mental illness and psychiatric disorders can be avoided.

"Urgent steps need to be taken to address mental health issues at workplaces involving employers, employees and the relevant authorities," he said.

He proposed that employers establish Safety and Health Committees at the workplace to examine and identify the problems relating to the promotion of mental health care at workplaces and formulate a sustainable programme to address these problems.

"Mental health education and promotion, which aims to address the rise of psychosocial problems in our society, is most essential in view of our aspiration to achieve developed nation status which obviously will exert tremendous pressure to deal with our daily responsibilities which could lead to stressful predicaments.

"Psychiatric disorders and other forms of mental illness are tragic reminders of another side of life which must not be overlooked in our quest to become a fully industrialised nation," he said.

He also said that the impact of mental illness on the family and the society is enormous in terms of loss of productivity, legal problems and economic costs.
