Kerangka industri penjagaan: Usaha KPWKM tingkatkan penjaga terlatih

Nasional - Dicipta: 17 Disember 2024 12:54 PM - Kemas kini: 17 Disember 2024 12:56 PM

Nancy Shukri / Foto RTM

KUALA LUMPUR, 17 Disember- Kementerian Pembangunan Wanita Keluarga dan Masyarakat (KPWKM) kini sedang membangun kerangka industri penjagaan.

Menteri Pembangunan Wanita, Keluarga dan Masyarakat, Datuk Seri Nancy Shukri berkata langkah itu antara lain bertujuan meningkatkan penawaran penjaga yang terlatih dan berkebolehan.

Ini seterusnya akan mempelbagaikan perkhidmatan penjagaan yang bersesuaian selari peningkatan permintaan masyarakat.

"Ini bertujuan untuk melahirkan lebih ramai penjaga atau caregivers terlatih dan berkebolehan bagi memenuhi permintaan yang semakin meningkat.

"Dengan peningkatan penawaran caregivers pelbagai tahap kemahiran dan kelayakan, ia seterusnya dapat mengembangkan industri ini serta memberi pilihan yang lebih luas kepada pasaran untuk mendapatkan perkhidmatan yang bersesuaian dengan keperluan dan kemampuan masing-masing," katanya ketika menjawab soalan Senator, Anna Bell @ Suzieana Perian yang ingin mengetahui usaha kerajaan dalam mengekalkan golongan wanita berkeluarga dalam pasaran buruh di Dewan Negara di sini.

MAJORITY OF GISBH CHILDREN IN PERAK HAVE BEEN CLAIMED BY THEIR FAMILIES – EXCO

🕒 17/12/2024 10:09 PM

IPOH, Dec 17 (Bernama) -- The majority of 55 children rescued during Op Global involving GISB Holdings Sdn Bhd (GISBH) in Perak have been reclaimed by their families, according to State Women, Family, Social Welfare, Cooperatives, and Entrepreneurship Development Committee chairman Datuk Salbiah Mohamed.

However, she did not disclose the exact number of children who had been reunited with their families.

"All actions undertaken by the Social Welfare Department (JKM) are aimed at protecting the children involved, based on thorough investigations conducted by the authorities," she told reporters after the 2024 Perak Elderly Welfare Programme here today.

Earlier, Women, Family, and Community Development Minister Nancy Shukri had revealed that 130 children rescued from charity homes linked to GISBH remained unclaimed by their parents.

In a separate development, Salbiah said a newborn baby boy found abandoned in a bush at Kampung Permatang near Sitiawan last Saturday was in stable condition at the Seri Manjung Hospital.

She added that her office would seek a court order to place the infant in a care centre under JKJ.

The baby boy was discovered by a member of the public in bushes behind a surau, wrapped in a piece of cloth.

Pusat jagaan kini ditutup sementara

Johor Bahru: Sebuah pusat jagaan kanak-kanak swasta di Kulai yang tular berikutan berlaku kejadian rogol dan dera kini ditutup sementara.

Pengerusi Jawatankuasa Pembangunan Wanita, Keluarga dan Masyarakat negeri Khairin-Nisa Ismail berkata, penutupan sementara dibuat mengikut Seksyen 15 Akta Pusat Jagaan 1993 (Akta 506).

Menurutnya, siasatan awal Jabatan Kebajikan Masyarakat (JKM) Johor pada 9 Disember lalu mendapati seramai 55 kanak-kanak berada di pusat jagaan terbabit.

“Hasil siasatan dan intervensi awal, seramai 32 kanak-kanak dipulangkan kepada ibu bapa kandung mereka pada 10 Disember lalu.

“Manakala baki terdiri daripada 10 lelaki dan 13 perempuan diselamatkan dan ditempatkan di lokasi selamat di bawah kendalian JKJ mengikut Akta Kanak-kanak 2001.

“Kesemua 23 kanak-kanak yang diselamatkan itu dibawa ke Mahkamah Kanak-Kanak untuk mendapatkan Perintah Sementara mengikut Seksyen 19(2) Akta Kanak-Kanak 2001.

“Mahkamah membenarkan mereka ditempatkan di tempat selamat yang diwartakan di bawah akta berkenaan,” katanya dalam kenyataan, semalam.

Menurut Khairin-Nisa, pihaknya memandang serius insiden terbabit dan kerajaan negeri dan JKJ komited menangani isu penderaan kanak-kanak.

Katanya, kes berkenaan masih dalam tindakan pihak polis untuk siasatan lanjut.

Ahad lalu, media melaporkan pemilik pusat jagaan anak yatim swasta berusia 59 tahun mengaku tidak bersalah atas dakwaan merogol penghuni berusia 17 tahun dan penganiayaan kanak-kanak di Mahkamah Sesyen Johor Bahru.

SOCIAL MEDIA FUELS CHILD PORN TRADE

PURVEYORS of child sexual abuse material are having the run of social media, the NST discovers. Equally alarming is the proliferation of the sordid and cheap videos in Malaysia, and the unbelievably easy access to smut by just anyone.

- Terrified parents demand crackdown on errant platforms
- Dad recounts experience of being added to porno WhatsApp group

REPORTS BY ALIZA SHAH AND AMALINA KAMAL ON PAGES 4 & 5

ONCE hidden in the recesses of the dark web, child sexual abuse material (CSAM) is now horrifyingly easy to access in Malaysia, with videos being sold on social media platforms for merely RM1.

The growing demand for such content is dangerously fuelling the production of locally made child pornography, raising grave concern about children's safety.

The New Straits Times (NST) recently investigated the underground world of pornographic content, uncovering numerous groups and hidden accounts openly promoting what they claimed to be international and locally produced content.

The sellers use a layered system where buyers must join general or preview groups, then interact with an admin to buy access to exclusive content.

In just three days, an NST reporter successfully infiltrated the groups and identified sellers distributing CSAM, highlighting the alarming ease with which they can be accessed.

Sellers attract buyers by sharing snippets of their content, screen recordings of the exclusive group's gallery and testimonials from previous "satisfied" buyers.

These messages are deleted after a certain period, with sellers frequently abandoning their accounts and creating new ones to avoid detection.

The reporter approached several sellers who offered a range of packages, granting access to groups allegedly containing CSAM, priced from RM50 to RM300.

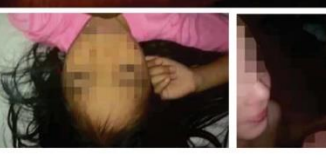

One of them claims to manage several groups, organised based on preferences, such as those featuring males with female partners and a group with exclusive content of females engaging in sexual intercourse with minors.

GROWING ILLICIT TREND

CHILDREN FORCED INTO LOCAL PORNOGRAPHIC CONTENT

What was once restricted to the dark web involving explicit content of kids is now widely traded due to high demand, especially on social media. Access to this illicit content is sold for as low as RM1.

Sex predators have mastered the trade of preying on their innocence, write ALIZA SHAH and AMALINA KAMAL

While the general groups, which can have up to 30,000 active members, these exclusive groups, often using innocuous names to avoid suspicion, appear to have fewer members.

The sellers seem unfazed by the possibility of any shutdown, deeply guaranteeing what they claim to be "lifetime" membership to their groups.

For those on a tighter budget, videos are available for as little as RM1 each.

All videos are sent to users upon payment, which can be made through various platforms, including QR code payments and e-wallets.

The NST sighted some of the videos.

While those in the videos appeared to be minors, reporters could not determine if they were Malaysians.

In one video, however, a male voice is heard speaking to a minor in a local Chinese dialect.

In many instances, the low-quality, homemade videos featured tightly zoomed-in, point-of-view shots, accompanied by indistinct voices giving instructions to the children.

Although the minors did not resist, they appear disoriented and simply followed instructions.

Many of them also looked uncomfortable, drowsy and some were even asleep.

Most of the videos were filmed in home settings, with some showing these individuals desperately trying to remain silent, as if fearing that they might wake others in the same household.

One chilling video even panned to reveal an adult sleeping on a nearby bed, unaware of the horrors unfolding just a few feet away.

One of the videos sighted by the NST was even recorded in the presence of a toddler, who was seen rolling on the floor nearby while the minor was engaged by an adult male.

In 2018, the NST reported on the Licensing won't solve the problem, and it wouldn't be easy... If I were in the government, I would ban platforms with immoral content and those violating data privacy to send a clear message that we mean business.

KHAIRIL AHMAD, 43 Parent

Parents call for action against online child exploitation

"The worst part is some of them even do check-ins (sharing their location on social media)," she said.

She emphasised the need to educate parents and update laws to equip the authorities with the necessary tools to fight such crimes.

"As we know, once things are on the Internet, they stay there, and getting them removed is difficult.

"We need a specific law to address this menace, and enforcement must go hand in hand with that."

A 35-year-old mother of two, Amalina Salleh, said she and her husband regularly have open discussions with their children about paedophilia to make them aware of the dangers.

"Our children have never been victims of sexual grooming or anything, but we make sure to have open discussions and regularly warn them about the dangers," she said.

"We are constantly worried and always ask ourselves, what more can we do to prevent such things?"

She urged the government to focus on cracking down on such criminals, especially on digital platforms where children "silently" make new friends, exchange activities and play games.

Meanwhile, Khairil Ahmad, 43, said social media platforms have influenced young audiences to aspire to potentially harmful lifestyles.

The father of a 10-year-old said in some cases the desire to be online is driven not by children themselves, but by their parents, who seek to earn money as "influencers."

"This crosses ethical boundaries and puts undue pressure on children. "Letting them solve the problem, and it wouldn't be easy.

He urged the government to take stricter measures against platforms where content is shared.

"If I were in the government, I would ban platforms with immoral content and those violating data privacy to send a clear message that we mean business," he said.

Another parent, Wan Liyana Rozan Wan Ahmad, 43, said as a mother of a 10-year-old child, she couldn't help but feel scared and worried about the risks social media poses to her daughter.

"My girl is still young, but in this era, I can't help over-thinking and worrying about how accessible social media is to criminals," she said.

"When the time comes, I will have to talk with her and remind her of these dangers."

She called for more attention to be given to raising public awareness about online sexual crimes.

"Parents and teachers can only do so much in monitoring and reminding their children, but the authorities must also raise awareness about online sexual crimes.

"Maybe they (the government) could create videos or games that engage young people and help them understand the risks."

"Our children have never been victims of sexual grooming or anything, but we make sure to have open discussions and regularly warn them about the dangers. But still, we are constantly worried and always ask ourselves, what more can we do to prevent such things?"

Dad shocked, traumatised by paedophiles' lust

KUALA LUMPUR: It started with a mysterious inclusion of his handphone number into what seemed to be a spam online chat group.

Then, out of the blue, came the sudden bursts of notifications.

What followed finally for the father-of-three was pure fear and disgust, when he realised his phone number had been added into a group that began to actively share child pornography.

The trauma remained with Mohd Fadhlil Othman, a child safety advocate, to the point that he could no longer look at the letters "CP" which was the name of the paedophile group, without being reminded of the horrors of its content.

Speaking to the New Straits Times, Fadhlil recounted how the incident disrupted his life in 2017.

"I woke up in the middle of the night and saw that my number had been added to a WhatsApp group. I initially ignored it because it was empty.

"But later that day, I received a flood of spam messages in the group.

"The content wasn't just so-called 'light' videos, but some even contained gruesome footage of violence and injury," he said.

Fadhlil is a former group member who expressed excitement over the videos, Fadhlil quickly hit the "out" button and removed himself from the perversion.

Since then, his phone number has been repeatedly added to similar groups, with the last instance requiring him to remove himself about two years ago.

"I can't stand looking at the name CP, which is an abbreviation for child porn. I am traumatised from this experience," he said.

Fadhlil, who has dedicated himself to advocating for the wellbeing of young people, particularly in reproductive education and child protection, said the spread of child pornographic content is rampant not only on one specific WhatsApp channel, but also across various platforms.

He stressed the need for the public, especially youngsters, to be educated in spotting potential sexual predators.

"Young people must be educated about the signs of paedophilia and how to protect themselves," he said.

“Saya ingat orang buang anak kucing, tapi apabila jenguk dalam kotak ada bayi di dalamnya menyebabkan badan menggigil.”

Begitu kata Salzura Abd Rahman, 42, yang menemui bayi perempuan cukup sifat di atas rak meletakkan lauk pauk di gerai miliknya di Kawasan Perindustrian Taman Kota, Yong Peng, di sini, kelmarin.

Menceritakan semula kejadian, Salzura berkata, dia bersama anak lelakinya Danis Syahputra Mohamad Saipol, 17, baru tiba di gerai kira-kira jam 5 pagi untuk memulakan perniagaan.

Menurutnya, dia masuk melalui pintu belakang sebelum terpandang kotak diletakkan atas rak tempat lauk pauk.

“Saya mula menggigil dan memanggil anak untuk melihat bayi itu,” katanya ketika ditemui di gerainya, di sini, hari ini.

Menurutnya, bayi itu hanya dibalut dengan kain batik selain di alas dengan tuala dalam kotak.

“Yang menghairankan, bayi itu langsung tidak menangis, tiada nota atau botol susu ditinggalkan bersama selain tali pusatnya sudah dipotong,” katanya yang menghubungi polis mengenai penemuan bayi berkenaan.
