KUCHING: Syarikat swasta dan badan korporat digesa mewujudkan polisi-polisi berkaitan bagi membantu pertumbuhan wanita dalam sektor pekerjaan masa kini.

Menteri Pembangunan Wanita, Keluarga dan Masyarakat Dato Sri Nancy Shukri berkata, antara yang dicadangkan beliau adalah dengan memberi pengurangan atau subsidi kepada pekerja untuk menghantar anak mereka ke pusat jagaan.

"Kepada mereka yang kerja dengan kerajaan ada diberi subsidi. Pihak swasta juga dapat memberi pengurangan ataupun mencari jalan untuk organisasi melahirkan polisi-polisi yang dapat membantu mereka.

"Bukan sahaja kerajaan ataupun hanya kepada ibu bapa saja untuk mengusahakan ini. Tetapi syarikat menyediakan polisi yang dapat membantu ibu bapa menghantar anak mereka ke tempat asuhan kanak-kanak atau taska," katanya.

Beliau berkata demikian pada sidang media selepas merasmikan Sambutan Hari Wanita Antarabangsa Peringkat Zon Borneo 2025 di UCSI Hotel di sini, semalam.

Turut hadir Menteri Pembangunan Wanita, Kanak-kanak dan Kesejahteraan Komuniti Sarawak Dato Sri Fatimah Abdullah dan Pembantu Menteri Pembangunan Masyarakat dan Kesejahteraan Rakyat Sabah Datuk Flovia Ng.

Pada masa yang sama, Nancy turut mencadangkan agar pusat asuhan kanak-kanak turut diwujudkan di syarikat-syarikat berkenaan bagi membantu golongan ibu kembali ke dalam sektor sumber manusia negara.

"Dengan ini, ia akan menunjukkan komitmen syarikat berkenaan dalam memberi dorongan kepada pekerja golongan wanita yang berkeluarga khususnya, perkara ini selalu disuarakan pihak kami untuk memberi kesedaran," ujarnya.

Beliau tidak menolak kemungkinan penurunan sumber manusia daripada golongan wanita jatuh sebanyak 60 peratus kerana keperluan untuk menjaga anak-anak.

Oleh itu katanya, adalah menjadi keutamaan kerajaan untuk mencapai sasaran agar golongan wanita kembali semula ke dalam sektor pekerjaan dengan memberi galakan menyeluruh dalam industri penjagaan.

Menurutnya lagi, industri penjagaan menjadi fokus utama meliputi penjagaan kanak-kanak dan orang tua yang boleh diceburi oleh golongan wanita tersebut.

"Pewujudan taska di tempat kerja atau berdekatan dengan premis pejabat juga perlu diperbanyakan agar golongan wanita dapat bekerja," saran beliau.

Bahkan pada tahun lalu katanya, latihan penjagaan di bawah Kementerian Sumber Manusia (KESUMA) yang dikendalikan oleh Institute of Social Malaysia (ISM) telah mencapai 385 penyertaan wanita dengan sasaran 485 orang pada tahun ini.

Tambah beliau, isu ini akan dibawa ke mesyuarat ASEAN yang akan datang, bagi dibincangkan bersama negara-negara serantau.

Hadir sama adalah Timbalan Menteri Pembangunan Wanita dan Kanak-Kanak Datuk Rosey Yunus.

Kejayaan seseorang wanita harus diraikan oleh wanita lain dan bukan membinasakan

KUCHING: Kejayaan seseorang wanita harus diraikan oleh wanita lain dan bukan membinasakan, kata Menteri Pembangunan Wanita, Keluarga dan Masyarakat Dato Sri Nancy Shukri semalam.

Beliau berkata demikian ketika berucap pada Sambutan Hari Wanita Antarabangsa 2025 Peringkat Zon Borneo di sebuah hotel di sini, semalam.

"Kita perlu menyokong antara satu sama lain. Hari ini adalah hari kita menghargai setiap wanita yang telah berjuang, yang masih berusaha dan yang sedang mencipta legasi mereka sendiri dan bukan untuk menjatuhkan mereka.

"Justeru, Hari Wanita Antarabangsa bukan sekadar hari untuk meraikan pencapaian wanita – ia adalah platform untuk kita meningkatkan kesedaran, mengiktiraf peranan dan sumbangan wanita dalam pelbagai bidang termasuk masyarakat, ekonomi dan politik," katanya.

Menurut beliau, sambutan itu juga bertujuan menyebarkan pengetahuan tentang cabaran yang dihadapi wanita masa kini, di samping membuktikan komitmen kerajaan dalam memastikan kepentingan gender menjadi keutamaan dalam perancangan dan pembangunan negara.

Katanya tahun ini, 'Wanita Beraspirasi Membina Legasi' menjadi tema yang cukup bermakna kerana ia melambangkan keberanian dan semangat wanita dalam mencapai impian dan mencipta impak berpanjangan.

Kini wanita semakin maju dalam pelbagai bidang – dari pendidikan, kepimpinan, teknologi hingga ke keselamatan dan ekonomi, ujarnya.

"Tetapi kita tahu bahawa perjalanan masih jauh dan perjuangan masih perlu diteruskan untuk memastikan setiap wanita mendapat peluang yang saksama dan bebas daripada sebarang bentuk diskriminasi.

"Tema ini juga membawa mesej bahawa wanita bukan sekadar tulang belakang keluarga tetapi juga pemimpin dan penggerak dalam pembangunan masyarakat dan negara.

"Kerajaan juga terus berusaha membentuk sebuah masyarakat yang lebih adil, inklusif dan progresif," tambahnya.

Namun, kejayaan tersebut jelasnya hanya boleh dicapai jika semua pihak termasuk sektor swasta, NGO dan individu bersama-sama menyokong usaha menghapuskan keganasan terhadap wanita serta memperkasakan penyertaan mereka dalam membuat keputusan.

Pada masa yang sama, tema yang sejajar dengan Deklarasi Beijing 1995, sejak 30 tahun lalu terus menjadi panduan dalam usaha memperkasakan wanita dan menentang diskriminasi, tambahnya.

"Tahun ini, KPWKM melalui Jabatan Pembangunan Wanita (JPW) memperkenalkan pendekatan baharu dalam meraikan Hari Wanita Antarabangsa.

"Untuk pertama kalinya, sambutan ini diadakan di lima lokasi mengikut zon – Borneo, Timur, Selatan, Tengah dan Utara.

"Pendekatan ini membolehkan lebih ramai wanita dari pelbagai negeri dan komuniti turut serta dalam sambutan ini, berbanding hanya menumpukan pada satu lokasi seperti sebelum ini," katanya.

Pihaknya tahun ini turut mendapat kerjasama baharu daripada Sarawak Energy Berhad (SEB) dan Universiti UCSI, di samping rakan sedia ada seperti Kelab Wanita Ikon Malaysia, Jabatan Wanita dan Keluarga Sarawak dan Jabatan Hal Ehwal Wanita Negeri Sabah.

Dianggarkan seramai 500 peserta dalam kalangan wanita dari Sabah dan Sarawak telah meraikan sambutan Hari Wanita Antarabangsa 2025 Peringkat Zon Borneo di sini.

Hadir sama adalah Menteri Pembangunan Wanita, Kanak-Kanak dan Kesejahteraan Komuniti Dato Sri Fatimah Abdullah, Timbalan Menteri Pembangunan Wanita dan Kanak-Kanak Datuk Rosey Yunus dan Timbalan Menteri di Jabatan Premier Sarawak (Undang-Undang, MA63 dan Hubungan Negeri-Persekutuan) Datuk Sharifah Hasidah Sayeed Aman Ghazali.

Isu kekurangan pusat penjagaan sosial, dibincang dalam Kepengerusian ASEAN

Nasional - Dicipta: 11 Februari 2025 08:33 PM - Kemas kini: 11 Februari 2025 08:48 PM

Menteri KPWKM, Datuk Seri Nancy Shukri/BERNAMA

KUCHING, 11 Februari— Kementerian Pembangunan Wanita, Keluarga dan Masyarakat (KPWKM) akan membawa isu kekurangan pusat penjagaan sosial dalam Kepengerusian ASEAN, tahun ini.

Menterinya, Datuk Seri Nancy Shukri memaklumkan, antara perkara yang akan dibincangkan bersama negara serantau adalah menggalakkan sektor awam dan swasta dalam memperluas industri pusat penjagaan.

"Industri penjagaan merupakan fokus utama kami terutamanya dalam mesyuarat ASEAN nanti. Kami akan bekerjasama dengan negara lain, khususnya Laos untuk menggalakkan inisiatif ini," kata Nancy kepada pemberita, hari ini.

Beliau ditemui selepas merasmikan Sambutan Hari Wanita Antarabangsa Peringkat Zon Borneo 2025, di sini.

Langkah itu selari dengan usaha kerajaan menggalakkan wanita kembali bekerja dalam semua sektor dan bersama menyumbang kepada kemakmuran ekonomi negara.

Tambahnya, kerajaan turut memberi subsidi untuk pekerja sektor awam membiayai pusat penjagaan anak-anak namun bagi sektor swasta, syarikat-syarikat juga diminta tampil berbuat sedemikian.

Pusat penjagaan bukan hanya untuk anak-anak malah turut meliputi pusat penjagaan orang tua.

Ia berikutan kekurangan atau kos pusat penjagaan yang tinggi antara kekangan wanita untuk bekerja semula.

'International Women's Day a platform to raise awareness, beyond celebration of achievements'

KUCHING: A woman's success should be celebrated by others, instead of being brought down, said Women, Family and Community Development Minister Datuk Seri Nancy Shukri.

"We must support one another. Today is a day to appreciate every woman who has fought, who is still striving, and who is building her own legacy; not to bring her down."

"The International Women's Day is more than just a celebration of women's achievements, as it is also a platform to raise awareness, recognise their contributions and highlight their roles across society, economy, and politics," she said at the 2025 Borneo Zone International Women's Day celebration at UCSI Hotel here yesterday.

According to the Santubong MP, the celebration also aims to raise awareness of the challenges that women face today and at the same time, to reaffirm the government's commitment to prioritising gender equality in national planning and development.

"This year's theme 'Women with Aspirations, Building a Legacy' holds deep significance, as it symbolises the courage and determination of women in pursuing their dreams and creating a lasting impact."

"The women today continue to advance across various fields, from education and leadership to technology, security and the economy."

"Nevertheless, we know that the journey is far from over, and the fight must continue to ensure that every woman has equal opportunities and is free from all forms of discrimination."

"This theme also carries the message that women are not just the backbone of their families, but also the leaders and key drivers of societal and national development.

"The government remains committed to building a more just, inclusive, and progressive society," she added.

However, Nancy also emphasised that this success could only be achieved if all parties including the private sector, non-governmental organisations and individuals, worked together to eliminate violence against women and empower their participation in decision-making.

On the theme, the federal minister described it as being aligned with the 1995 Beijing

Declaration, serving as a guiding framework for women's empowerment and the fight against discrimination over the past 30 years.

"This year, the Ministry of Women, Family and Community Development, through the Department of Women Development, has introduced a new approach to celebrating International Women's Day."

"For the first time, the celebration is being held across five zones nationwide: Borneo, East, South, Central, and North."

"This approach allows more women from different states and communities to participate, rather than concentrating the event in a single location as in previous years," she explained.

This year, the event also received new collaborations from Sarawak Energy Berhad and UCSI University, alongside existing partners such as Kelab Wanita Ikon Malaysia, Sarawak Women and Family Department, and Sabah Women's Affairs Department.

About 500 women from Sabah and Sarawak took part in the 2025 Borneo Zone International Women's Day celebration here.

Also present were Minister of Women, Childhood, and Community Wellbeing Development Dato Sri Fatimah Abdullah and her deputy Datuk Rosey Yunus, as well as Deputy Minister in the Premier's Department Datuk Sharifah Hasidah Sayeed Aman Ghazali.

Seramai 485 penjaga berkemahiran khusus disasarkan dilatih oleh Institut Sosial Malaysia tahun ini

📍 NUR HAZIRAH SHUKUR

KUCHING: Kementerian Pembangunan Wanita, Keluarga dan Masyarakat (KPWK) menasarak untuk melahirkan seramai 485 penjaga berkemahiran khusus tahun ini bagi memperkukuhkan kualiti industri penjagaan melibatkan kanak-kanak, warga emas, dan golongan berkeperluan khas.

Menteri Pembangunan Wanita, Keluarga dan Masyarakat, Datuk Seri Nancy Shukri berkata, latihan kepada penjaga itu juga dikendalikan oleh Institut Sosial Malaysia (ISM).

"Tahun lalu, kita sudah mencapai sasaran 385 penjaga berkemahiran khusus ini, manakala kita menasarak seramai 485 untuk tahun ini.

"Namun, angka yang saya sebutkan itu cuma sasaran sahaja, dan kita percaya jumlah itu juga boleh menunjukkan peningkatan," katanya.

Nancy (duduk tengah) merakam gambar kenangan bersama tetamu kehormat dan peserta lain.

Beliau berkata demikian pada sidang media selepas merasmikan Hari Wanita Antarabangsa Peringkat Zon Borneo 2025 di Hotel UCSI di sini, hari ini.

Menjelas lanjut, beliau memaklumkan bahawa penjaga berkemahiran khusus itu juga terdiri daripada pelbagai usia, dan keutamaan diberikan kepada mereka yang masih boleh bekerja.

"Latihan ini juga bukan sahaja ditumpukan kepada penjagaan warga emas dan kanak-kanak tetapi juga untuk semua.

"Ia penting bagi melahirkan penjaga berkemahiran dengan sijil, dan insya-Allah kita akan menawarkan latihan di peringkat diploma pula nanti," ujarnya.

Program latihan penjaga berkemahiran itu juga berada di bawah Kementerian Sumber Malaysia (KESUMA) dan dikendalikan oleh ISM.

Dalam pada itu, tambahnya, Malaysia akan menjadi tuan rumah kepada Kepengerusan ASEAN 2025 tahun ini, dan industri penjagaan sememangnya menjadi fokus utama program tersebut.

"Kita juga akan bersama dengan negara serantau, terutama sekali Laos, untuk menggalakkan usaha berkenaan," jelasnya.

Sementara itu, ketika berucap pada acara hari ini, Nancy memaklumkan bahawa Hari Wanita Antarabangsa bukan sekadar untuk meraikan pencapaian wanita.

Ia juga menjadi platform untuk meningkatkan kesedaran serta mengiktiraf peranan dan sumbangan wanita dalam pelbagai bidang, termasuk masyarakat, ekonomi, serta politik.

Lebih istimewa dalam penganjuran pada tahun ini, KPWK mendapat kerjasama baharu daripada Sarawak Energy Bhd dan Universiti UCSI, di samping rakan sedia ada seperti Kelab Wanita Ikon Malaysia, Jabatan Wanita dan Keluarga Sarawak serta Jabatan Hal Ehwal Wanita Negeri Sabah.

Kira-kira 500 peserta, yang terdiri daripada wanita dari Sabah dan Sarawak, meraikan sambutan Hari Wanita Antarabangsa 2025 Peringkat Zon Borneo, hari ini.

PUSAT transit remaja hamil bawah umur yang pertama di Sarawak Dawn Hope bukan sahaja menyediakan perlindungan dan pemulihan selamat untuk ibu muda dan bayi mereka, malah pusat yang diwujudkan menerusi inisiatif Yayasan Sime Darby (YSD) dan Pertubuhan Pembangunan Insan Sarawak (PPIS) turut menawarkan sokongan penting untuk remaja terabit.

Menteri Pembangunan Wanita, Keluarga dan Masyarakat, Dato Sri Nancy Shukri, berkata ia merangkumi penjagaan kesihatan, perkhidmatan kesihatan mental, kaunseling serta kemahiran latihan untuk membina semula kehidupan mereka.

Menurutnya, sistem sokongan itu disusun atur bagi memastikan ibu muda terabit mendapatkan semula keyakinan diri dan melangkah ke masa depan dengan bermaruah serta penuh kekuatan.

"Usaha yang dilakukan YSD dalam mengintegrasikan pendidikan dan latihan vokasional ke dalam inisiatif itu harus dipuji.

"Membekalkan ibu muda dengan kemahiran dan pengetahuan bukan sahaja membantu mereka meneruskan hidup, malah memberi peluang untuk berkembang maju," katanya.

Beliau berkata demikian ketika berucap pada Majlis Pelancaran Rumah Singgah Untuk Remaja Memerlukan Dawn Hope: A Safe Haven For Girls in Need di Kuching, baru-baru ini.

Nancy berkata, pendidikan berterusan dan latihan kemahiran mampu membuka peluang ke arah masa depan lebih cerah.

"Saya turut gembira apabila mengetahui PPIS juga menyediakan sesi latihan untuk ibu bapa, pertubuhan bukan kerajaan (NGO) dan pemimpin komuniti dalam inisiatif ini.

"Usaha ini penting dalam meningkatkan kesedaran, mencegah kehamilan remaja serta mengurangkan kes pempuangan bayi," katanya.

Menurutnya, kerjasama dengan pegawai Jabatan Kebajikan Masyarakat (JKM) Sarawak akan memastikan pengurusan pusat perlindungan dilakukan mengikut amalan terbaik serta dasar yang berkesen sentiasa diperhalusi.

"Isu menangani kehamilan remaja memerlukan pendekatan menyeluruh daripada seluruh masyarakat kerana antara isu yang sentiasa mendapat perhatian," katanya sambil memaklumkan 44,263 kes kehamilan remaja direkodkan di negara ini dalam tempoh lima tahun lalu dengan 17,646 daripadanya tidak berkahwin ketika hamil.

Beliau berkata, bagi Sarawak pula, statistik kehamilan luar nikah bagi remaja bawah umur direkodkan menurun pada 2024 iaitu 364 kes, berbanding 477 kes pada 2023.

"Walaupun angka itu berjaya mempamerkan penurunan 113 kes pada tahun lalu, usaha berterusan dalam membangunkan sistem sokongan lebih kukuh amat diperlukan bagi membantu golongan yang terabit," katanya.

Pengerusi YSD, Tunku Tan Sri Imran Tuanku Ja'afar pula berkata, pelancaran 'Dawn Hope' menunjukkan komitmen kolektif pihaknya untuk menyokong ibu muda dalam membina semula kehidupan mereka.

"Menerusi inisiatif ini, YSD memastikan setiap penduduk menerima sokongan yang diperlukan untuk berintegrasi semula ke dalam masyarakat dengan penuh keyakinan.

"Kami juga berhasrat menangani isu sosial yang kritikal seperti pencegahan kehamilan remaja dan pempuangan bayi dengan menyediakan ruang selamat, peluang pendidikan dan program kesedaran," katanya.

Sementara itu, Presiden PPIS, Manjeet Kaur Sidhu berkata, remaja hamil yang memerlukan bantuan pusat perlindungan sementara 'Dawn Hope' boleh menghubungi pihaknya.

"Kita akan bertemu mereka dan menjalankan saringan bagi memastikan kes yang diterima adalah sahah dan layak.

"Selepas itu, mereka akan dipindahkan ke Dawn Hope ini," katanya sambil memaklumkan pusat transit itu akan beroperasi di Kuching.

First registered childcare centre in Serian

📍 Nura V Lorna 📌 Education, Sarawak News 📅 10 February 2025

Linda holds the Registered Taska plaque at the event.

KUCHING: Taska Impian has made history as the first childcare centre in Serian to be officially registered under the Social Welfare Department (JKM).

Owned by Linda Mareh, 38, the centre's registration sets a new standard for quality childcare in the constituency and serves as a call to action for other childcare providers to follow suit.

The launch of the Registered Taska plaque took place at Wisma Kebajikan Masyarakat, where the event was graced by the Minister of Women, Family, and Community Development Datuk Seri Nancy Shukri.

Her attendance demonstrates the government's support for initiatives that safeguard children's welfare and promote high standards in childcare facilities.

Linda expressed the importance of the registration, saying that it is not merely about fulfilling legal obligations but also about taking social responsibility to provide the best possible care for children.

"I hope that Taska Impian's example will encourage more childcare operators in Serian to register their facilities, ensuring that children are cared for in safe, high-quality environments," she said.

The registration serves as an achievement for the Serian Welfare Office, which has been actively encouraging more childcare providers to comply with registration standards.

By doing so, parents can be assured of the safety, well-being, and quality of care their children receive.

With Taska Impian leading the way, the hope is that more childcare centres in Serian will take similar steps, contributing to the creation of a safer, more nurturing environment for young children.

Experts recommend expanding PJ's senior care services

0 February 11, 2025, 8:30 am

By Yasmin Ramlan

PETALING JAYA, Feb 11 — An expert has recommended expanding community-based care and mobile caregiving services in Petaling Jaya to enhance support for senior citizens.

Selangor Care Economy advisory committee member Khadijah Alavi said elderly individuals who continue living in their own homes often experience better well-being, longer life spans, and a greater sense of dignity, respect, and self-worth in their final years.

Speaking during the Petaling Jaya Care Economy Action Plan 2025-2030 workshop, Khadijah, a Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia (UKM) lecturer, pointed out the need for strategic budget allocations to strengthen care services, including elderly care homes, welfare centres, and orphanages.

"I hope to see more community-based services and mobile caregivers in Petaling Jaya rather than relying solely on structured or restructured care centres.

"Based on my research, senior citizens who remain in their own homes tend to be healthier, live longer, and pass away in a dignified manner compared to those in institutional care," she said in a forum held as part of the workshop at the MBPJ Banquet Hall yesterday.

Organised by the Petaling Jaya City Council (MBPJ), the workshop brought together caregivers, care centre operators, relevant authorities, non-governmental organisations, policymakers, experts, and academics to strengthen the local care economy and improve support for vulnerable communities.

It also aimed to identify challenges in establishing care centres, facilitate discussions, and explore possible support measures.

The Petaling Jaya action plan includes measures to improve guidelines for care service approvals, attract investment in the care sector, and enhance workforce training and support.

Elaborating further, Khadijah cited dementia care as an example that requires a strong community-based support system, including social interaction that helps maintain patients' cognitive function.

"We (UKM) are indeed working together with UM (Universiti Malaya) on dementia care. What we want to propose to the government is a dementia-friendly care hub where caregivers can monitor their loved ones. Most of our dementia patients (in Malaysia) rarely leave their homes.

"So, we need some community-based initiatives as a support system. One of the most important aspects is ensuring that dementia patients walk and talk because social interaction is crucial — it works similarly to how children develop communication skills. Regardless of age, dementia patients need continuous engagement.

"Loneliness... when you do not talk, you start losing yourself. In Malaysia, this can happen at any age. Previously, we considered it an elderly disease, but now even people as young as 30 are being diagnosed.

"This is a serious issue, and MBPJ needs to pay attention and provide appropriate services for dementia care," she said.

Khadijah added that by 2030, it is estimated that 240,000 Malaysians will have dementia, highlighting the urgency for early intervention and care programmes.

Ageing should happen at home

Meanwhile, at one of the forums, the Women, Family, and Community Development Ministry's corporate social responsibility unit's assistant secretary Fatimah Zuraidah Salleh emphasised the need for effective measures to strengthen the Care Economy Action Plan.

programmes. As mentioned earlier, the role of community-level initiatives — local authorities are among the main players in this effort," Fatimah said.

She quoted countries like China and Japan as examples, where the local authorities have significant power in managing the welfare of senior citizens, children, and disabled persons.

"Our local authorities should also play such a role. Secondly, we need to pioneer and enhance community-based, integrated, one-stop care centres.

"This means we want ageing to take place at home or within the framework of community well-being," Fatimah said.

Fatimah emphasised the need for a centralised one-stop care centre within the community, allowing the local authorities to identify families with children with disabilities, households with sick family members, and residences requiring care, ensuring they receive appropriate assistance.

She also proposed introducing incentives to encourage corporate sector participation in providing services for those in need, particularly through civil society organisations or corporate philanthropic organisations.

Citing Singapore, she spoke of a programme that supports ageing by providing home modifications for lower-income (B40) residents, improving accessibility for both care recipients and caregivers.

However, instead of relying entirely on local authorities to cover the costs, corporate contributions can help finance the initiative.

Therefore, Fatimah suggested that the local authorities in Malaysia could adopt a similar approach by offering tax exemption incentives to corporations involved in such initiatives.

The forum also featured Seterra Group of Companies chief executive officer Wan Rashidi Wan Yahaya and Kampung Tunku state assemblyman Lim Yi Wei.

Meanwhile, in a separate forum, Lim said the state government's care economy initiative began under former state executive councillor for public health Dr Siti Mariah Mahmud and is now being continued by her successor Anfaal Saari.

"The state government has introduced several initiatives to support the care economy, but the most recent one, as announced by YB Anfaal Saari, is a RM400,000 grant to encourage childcare centers to register, offering up to RM5,000 in aid per centre.

"The state government is focusing on financial support for care services with an emphasis on good governance," she said.

She points out the crucial role of local authorities in implementing community-based care services.

"The first priority is to strengthen the capacity of home-based and community-based care

'It's not their fault': Elderly couple worry about stateless children in their care

Noraini Hasan and Zubir Ramli are willing to be separated if it means that the children they have been taking care of have a chance at an education.

MalaysiaNow February 11, 2025 9:21 AM 3 minute read

Zubir Ramli and his wife Noraini Hasan teaching Muhammad Ziqri and Fatihah Qaisara at their home. The children were taken into their care after their mother vanished to Indonesia, and are among thousands denied formal education due to their stateless status.

For years, Noraini Hasan and her husband Zubir Ramli have cared for two children abandoned by their birth parents, bringing them up as their own and working hard to give them everything within their power.

But their greatest fears are tied to the one thing they cannot provide for these children: citizenship.

This is not for a lack of trying. Noraini and Zubir have met with officials from the Social Welfare Department and the National Registration Department – so far, in vain.

Due to their stateless status, Muhammad Ziqri and Fatihah Qaisara could not attend school like other children, and spend their mornings at the nearby playground.

Now, they worry from day to day about what will happen to the children once they are no longer able to care for them.

The boy, Muhammad Ziqri, is the son of Noraini's former Indonesian worker.

"I knew his mother for a long time," Noraini, 56, told MalaysiaNow.

"She asked me to take care of her child for a short while so that she could go back to Indonesia to settle her passport."

But the woman never came back, and Noraini's many attempts to contact her were ignored.

Ziqri turned eight this year and, in another world, would be attending school in Standard Two now. But because he does not have a MyKad, he has never even set foot in a school compound.

The girl, Fatihah Qaisara, is nine years old. She is more fortunate than Ziqri in that she is allowed to attend religious classes in the afternoon.

But even this was a stroke of luck, as there happened to be a vacancy in the school.

Fatihah was abandoned by her mother, Zubir's niece, before she even left the hospital.

Her mother, who had no documentation either, went back to her hometown where she vanished without a trace.

Noraini, who helps in her son's eatery, has no peace of mind worrying about what the future might hold for the two.

"Every morning after they bathe, they follow me to the shop," she said.

"Sometimes they go to the nearby playground. They spend their mornings there but they should actually be in school.

"It's really saddening, thinking about what will happen to them."

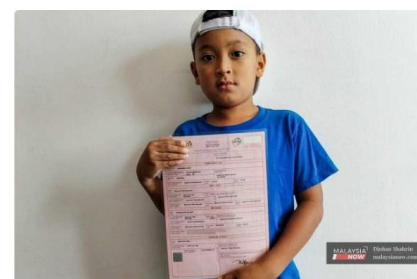

Noraini and Zubir, 54, do what they can to give the children an education on their own, no matter how informal.

"They can spell, but they can't read very well," Noraini said.

"Their writing and mathematics are also not as good as those of the other children. They ask me so many times when they can go to school. But I have no answer for them."

Once, an official from the education ministry promised to help them when the next school session began.

"But when we came again, it was another official who wouldn't let the children attend school because they don't have identity cards."

Noraini said the Social Welfare Department asked them to turn to the media.

"They said, make an announcement in the newspapers. If no one comes to claim the children within a month, they will help them go to school."

If their application succeeds, the couple plan to send Ziqri to school at Zubir's hometown in Taiping, Perak.

"I'll go back with him to take care of the family farm as it's hard for me to find work here, given my age.

"Fatihah will stay here, and our other children will take care of her," Zubir said.

This will mean splitting up the family, but both Noraini and Zubir believe it will be worth it.

"We have no heart to abandon these children when it's not their fault," Zubir said.

Viral video leads to mother's remand in child abuse probe

KANGAR: A canteen worker was remanded for six days starting yesterday to assist investigations after allegedly hitting her four-year-old daughter, causing the child to fall and hit the corner of a bench in front of a supermarket in Jejawi, Arau.

Arau police chief Supt Ahmad Mohsin Md Rodi said the remand order on the 37-year-old woman was granted by Magistrate Ana Rozana Mohd Nor.

He said the woman was arrested at her rented room in Jejawi at 11.30pm on Monday after police received a video via WhatsApp around 10pm.

The video showed the woman striking the back of her daughter's head, causing the child to knock against the corner of the bench corner and bleed.

This incident occurred on Feb 9, and the child sustained a wound on her right eyebrow that required stitches.

"The case is being investigated under Section 31(1)(a) of the Child Act 2001," he said in a statement.

He added that the woman has a husband who is also a canteen worker, and another daughter aged two years. The 47-second video went viral on social media on Monday. — Bernama
